

ON A BIG 'POSSUM FARM.

THROCKMORTON HAS EIGHT HUNDRED OF THE FUNNY THINGS.

His Farm Near Griffin, Ga., Presents a Most Singular Sight—An Immense Orchard of Persimmon Trees—The Way the 'Possums Fight When Feeding Time Comes.

A few miles west of Griffin is the home of Mr. William Throckmorton. Mr. Throckmorton is the proprietor of the most unique and remunerative farm in Georgia. It is the "Lime Creek 'Possum farm."

On the very crest of a well-wooded hill is a comfortable cottage surrounded by beautiful shade trees. At the foot of the hill is a pretty branch, running through the very center of a ten acre persimmon grove enclosed within a high board fence.

The persimmon trees are interspersed with a quantity of old hollow trees and hollow logs planted in the ground.

WHAT AN EXPERT SAW.

It was in the early afternoon when we arrived, and to the uninformed the farm appeared to be an immense fruit orchard bearing an oblong whitish sort of fruit hanging from the dead limbs of the trees by a long, black stem. But appearances were deceptive. It was not fruit, but between seven and eight hundred 'possums taking their afternoon siesta. Our party were somewhat unacquainted with the habits of the Georgia 'possum, and consequently plied question after question to our highly amused hosts. I now consider myself an expert on the 'possum, and here is what I learned and saw:

The 'possum, when desiring to take a nap, simply climbs the most convenient tree, walks out on a limb, wraps his tail one and a half times around and swings his body out into space. His legs and feet are drawn close into his body and his head drawn up between his shoulders until it forms an almost perfect ball and appears to be a great pear covered with white fur.

The sun was slowly setting below the distant pine mountains and we were still gazing at the queer objects in amused wonder when a half dozen little 'possums emerged from the pocket of their mother, ran up her tail and commenced playing on the limb above. In a few minutes this marvellous stretched her head and then her fore feet, and she swung herself once or twice, grabbed her tail with her fore paws and climbed up it to the limb, which she caught with her claws, untwisted her tail and pulled it up. Hardly had she balanced herself when the half dozen young ones climbed into her pocket and were hid from view. She then climbed down the tree.

While this was going on more than seven hundred others had awakened and were coming down from the trees. Reaching the ground each one made for the creek, drank, and then ran up the hill to a pen in which they were to be fed.

BAKED 'POSSUM AND TATER.

They were of all sizes. Some would barely weigh a half pound, while others would tip the scales at thirty. The 'possum, when hungry, utters a sound which is a cross between a mew and a moan. Over seven hundred 'possums were together so thick that the ground could not be seen between them, and the small ones had been forced upon the backs of the larger. All were uttering this peculiar sound, reminding one of an army of soldiers mourning over the death of their general, when through a gate a negro pushed a wheelbarrow, heaping full of all kinds of trash and slops—consisting of fruit peelings, vegetables, meats, bones and bread. As he hoisted in sight the scene among the 'possums reminded one of feeding time in a menagerie. The little ugly animals screamed and scratched and hit at one another until the negro had scattered the contents of the wheelbarrow over the ground. Then, although it was well scattered, all wanted to eat in one place just like hogs, and there was considerable more scratching and biting. But this did not last long, for the rations were soon consumed by the great drove of 'possums, and they commenced to disperse, seemingly contented, and this time climbed the persimmon trees.

During the persimmon season the 'possums are not fed at all, for it is on this fruit they become rolling fat and ready for market.

Mr. Throckmorton ships five hundred to eastern points and the cities through-out Georgia. They average him $1 each, and he makes quite a good thing out of it, as they are practically no expense to him. In shipping to Atlanta and Georgia points they are generally dressed, but the majority go to Washington and are shipped there alive. The large shipments to Washington are perhaps due to the average southern congressman's fondness for "baked 'possum and taters." Griffin (Ga.) Cor. Atlanta Constitution.

The Way of the Negro.

The ignorant, pleasure loving, happy-go-lucky negro of Washington is as carefully discriminating with reference to the payment of bills as the insolvent merchant who is making a list of preferred creditors. The grocer or butcher who trusts him is often likely to want for his money until the ink on the account book becomes pale and illegible, but the professional man—the doctor or the lawyer—always gets his money. He looks upon a doctor with a kind of superstitious respect. The simplicity of his mind makes him an uncanny being who brings about wonderful results by means that can be little short of supernatural. He will bring his last fifty cents to a doctor whom he has employed and force it upon him, whether he wants it or not. "Take it, boss," says he; "I'll be hoodooed if you don't take it." The lawyer is also regarded with awe because of his mysterious connection with the powers of the law, and in most cases has little trouble in collecting his fees.—Washington Critic.

"Saved by Faith."

A druggist's wife in Steubenville, O., had not been able to do her own work for years. She had tried all climates and doctors without relief, is now cured of weakness known only to women. You ask what cured her: faith enough to use a few bottles of Milton's nerve and lung food. You try it. Sample bottle free. Sold by I. Leist, n. e. 1st.

CURES FOR INSOMNIA.

A Lady Tells How She Helped Her Husband to Break the Awful Spell.

I was much interested in the notes from Dr. Ford's lecture in the Herald of Health, and wish that every woman as well as every nurse in the land could read them. Those of us who are at the heads of households may some time need all the knowledge we can get upon the subject of insomnia. The trouble grows more common every year, especially in America, where we are apt to live upon "nerves" in all times of trial or excitement.

There is no doubt that personal magnetism is one of the best medicines for insomnia, the will of the nurse subjugating and calming that of the patient. Two very unhappy cases have come under my own personal supervision. One was my husband, who became so wretched that he would sleep about two hours and then get up to walk all over the place, and often for miles into the country. One night I began talking to him when he awakened, and finding that my voice quieted him, kept on, repeating poetry, and finally mixing my sentences up in a dreadful way. I was so sleepy myself. But he went to sleep, too, and did not awaken until near morning. It was remarkable, for he had not slept so much at night for two years. That day I learned to repeat Paris Ronn, knowing that my husband was very fond of it. So when he got wakened the next night I had something to say over to him, and to my delight, he fell asleep before I was half through the poem. And so we kept up our midnight conversations for three months. I tell all the fairy stories, the gossip incidents, and repeating all the poems I knew. And little by little, so soon as he began to sleep every night, he was cured, and now a cannon fired in the room would hardly awaken him.

The other case was of a lady with whom I spent a year. I begged her to try the Dalsarte movements of the body—limbering herself, and swinging about until she began to feel drowsy. When she would grow restless in the night, she would arise and try the same exercise. It finally cured her, after a year of faithful practice. Her trouble was more physical, while my husband's was mental. He grew to depend upon me like a child, and if I happened to be away from the house, he could not sleep. So soon as a person so afflicted begins to sleep well, the general health improves and sleep is more easily induced. As Dr. Ford says, there is a knack of putting one to sleep, and each daughter of the family ought especially to learn the secret, if possible, for so much of the comfort and well being of humanity depends upon women.—Mrs. George W. Ogilvie in Herald of Health.

That in their neighborhood, (Pittsburgh, Mich.) Brant's Extract of Blackberry has cured several cases of Diarrhoea, Dysentery and summer complaint, which physicians had failed to cure. One case in particular, old Mr. Dows, engaged about a diarrhoea, confined to the bed and unable to help or control himself, expected to live but a short time, was cured by using one bottle of Brant's Extract of Blackberry.

Cures almost instantly. Unequalled for summer complaint, etc., of children.

Eel Skins for Rheumatism.

"Give me two large eel skins," said a young woman who entered a North End drug store at the time a Globe man happened to be quenching his thirst at the soda fountain.

"Eel skins?" said the Globe man to the clerk, when the young lady had left with her purchase. "What does she want of eel skins?"

"Rheumatism," said the drug clerk. "You'd be surprised at the number of people who use eel skins for rheumatism. I know an old man whose arms and legs are completely strapped with them, and he believes that they prolong his life. We have more or less call for them, but I understand that up town stores don't keep them, although one in a while their customers ask for them. We get our skins of a fish dealer on Atlantic avenue. He purchases them from South Boston people, who sell the skinned eels for food, and when the skins are dried, sell them to various customers. In many of the fish stores on Atlantic avenue you will see a bunch of the skins suspended from the wall by a hook. They are very oily and soft, and while I don't take much stock in them, numbers of people have implicit faith in them. I am told that there is a German family in South Boston that sells these eel skins to various people throughout the United States and realizes a snug little income therefrom."—Boston Globe.

Admiral Porter held a state dinner in Washington and Ah Sin, a Chinese servant, was assigned to duty in attendance at the door. In his country a visitor's rank is indicated by the size of the card, and a huge yellow one means the presence of a prince. The small bits of paste-board received but scant courtesy from Ah Sin, but when the gas collector presented his bill the Celestial's demeanor underwent a change. The long, yellow slip captured Ah Sin, and with profound salaams he bowed the astonished gasman into the presence of the unnamed family and late head of the navy.—Chicago Times.

The Keeper.

A stranger, just arrived at a city boarding house, whose table and boarders he found not at all to his liking, fell into conversation with a quiet looking lady who sat near him in the dining room.

"I say, madam," said he softly, "have you been a prisoner long in this—this menagerie?"

"H'm!" said the lady; "prisoner isn't exactly the word in my case. You see, I'm the landlady, and it's me that feeds the animals!"—Youth's Companion.

According to Voltaire, forks were in use on the continent in the Thirteenth and Fourteenth centuries. This is disputed. They were not introduced into England until the beginning of the Seventeenth century.

The surprising manner in which the country is being swept by the great discovery of Dr. Miles for curing the many diseases that originate in the nerves is astonishing all who know the facts. The Restorative Nerve, a brain and nerve food, sold by I. Leist cures weakness, want of appetite, exhaustion, debility from overwork, care, worry and dissipation. It takes the place of stimulants, opiates, chloral, etc., and cures all nervous troubles. It contains no morphine, opium or dangerous drugs.

The Future of Steamboating.

It is not easy to predict what is to be the future of this great boating interest. We have over twenty thousand miles of steam navigation, we have original and enterprising boat builders, and an enormous traveling public. We have had in the past a phenomenal fleet of steamboats, particularly on our western rivers, and yet the business has been greatly depressed, and there are fewer boats afloat today than twenty years ago. Moreover—and this is the most serious matter of all—our canals are being abandoned year by year. While Europe spends millions on canals and waterways, while France is trying to make every little stream navigable, and England is trying to turn her interior cities into seaports, we permit our canals to fill up or foolishly give them away to impetuous railroads for roads. Is it wise? Are we safe in trusting all our freight business to railroad corporations? Today we can, if the need come, send gunboats inland from the Delaware to New York bay. If we permit the railroads to destroy the business of the canal between our ship yards and our navy yards, we may be sure that in every European war office the fact of our folly is carefully noted for future reference. Once Great Britain fought a great battle to destroy the water route that connects the port of New York with the back door of New England. Saratoga was fought to destroy a vital water route. Fortunately, the English generals who planned in London thus to cut the country in two failed, and yet today we are abandoning our canals and see our great internal steam navigation system decay without a thought of the consequences.

On the other hand—for there is a brighter side to every picture—there is a disposition among the traveling public to demand larger, finer, and safer boats everywhere. We are being taught by English tourists who visit us to see our own country. We may complacently talk of our limited trains and all that. Every foreigner who visits us asks first of all for our steamboat routes, because our lake, river, and sound boats are known of all the world.—Charles Bernard in Century.

The Cutest Little Things.

"Cute!" he echoed. "Well, I don't know as the adjective would have occurred to me in just that connection. But if you mean that they do their work thoroughly, yet make no fuss about it; cause no pain or weakness; and, in short, are anything that a pill ought to be, and nothing that it ought not, then I agree that Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pills are about the cutest little things going."

Is Ice Water a Healthy Drink?

In the opinion of the editor of the Sanitary Volunteer, the official organ of the New Hampshire board of health, there is a great deal of sentiment and many opinions regarding the use of ice water that vanish when the light of reason and experience is turned upon them. The fact is that ice water, drunk slowly and in moderate quantities, constitutes a healthful and invigorating drink. There is no doubt that ice is a great sanitary agent, and every family ought to be provided with it during the warmer months of the year. It is true that the inordinate use of ice water, or its use under some special conditions and circumstances, is attended with great danger; so is the improper use of any other drink or food. The assumption that ice water is dangerous, and that iced tea, or iced coffee, or iced lemonade is a harmless substitute, is simply a delusion. As the source of danger feared by some is the degree of cold, we fail to see clearly how flavor modifies the effect of temperature. There are individuals, undoubtedly, who cannot drink ice water without injury, and who ought never to use it, but to a great majority of persons it is refreshing and healthful. Its use, temperate and discreet, is in no way to be condemned, which cannot be said of its substitutes.—Sanitary News.
